DISTILLER DEFIES TOWN.

Armed with two rifles, a double-barrel shotgun, and three .38-caliber pistols, all loaded, Wiley Black, a former distiller, promenaded Main street, Ashesville, N. C. yesterday, declaring he was "laying for Judge Spears Reynolds," whom he intended to kill on sight. Black's presence and his threats caused consternation in the crowd on the street. People fled in all directions, and he threatened to shoot any one who attempted to arrest him. He defied the entire town, and waving his guns, declared the first man that approached him would be a "dead one."

The chief of police and a number of policemen surrounded the walking arsenal, but he refused to surrender. The police then made a rush at him, and overpowered him after a struggle.

Judge Reynolds, hearing of Black's threats, went to the cell where Black was confined, and told him any time Black wanted to kill him he could find the judge at his office any day, but told Black that there were others who could shoot as straight as Black and sentenced him to twelve months on the roads. Black gave bond and took an appeal.

Black was recently indicted for operating a "blind tiger" and he resented Judge Reynolds' action in the case. Judge Reynolds comes of a fighting stock, and declares he will tolerate "no bullying." He brought on the clash between the State and Federal authorities in North Carolina in the rail-road passenger case a year ago, by interfering Southern Railway agents, and sentencing them to the roads for violating the passenger laws. He also caused the arrest of President Finley, of the Southern, who was released on a habeas corpus writ by Judge J. C. Pritchard.

WIFE BEATER ESCAPES LYNCHING.

John Updegrave, a carpenter, aged thirty-seven, narrowly escaped lynching at South Cumberland, Md., last night, after he had severely beaten his wife and fired two shots from a rifle at the crowd who gathered to protect the woman.

Updegrave began beating his wife in the house and followed it up by choking and knocking her down in the street, to which she escaped. As she fled to a group of railroad men for protection Updegrave fired, the bullets narrowly missing their mark.

The crowd, with cries of "lynch him!" closed in on Updegrave, knocked him down, and gave him a terrible beating. His clothing was nearly stripped from his body in the melee. A rope was procured, and preparations were being hurriedly made to hang him to the post of the nearby Y. M. C. A. building, when the police rescued him and rushed him to jail.

Mrs. Updegrave was removed to the Western Maryland Hospital. She is suffering from violent convulsions. She was kicked on the back of the head and on the body, and may not recover. Updegrave has served time in the Maryland penitentiary. Some years ago he stole $50 in gold, which John Weems, an aged German, had hoarded for fifteen years to pay his funeral expenses.

STOMACH TROUBLES.

Many remarkable cures of stomach troubles have been effected by Chamberlain's Stomach and Liver Tablets. One man who had spent over two thousand dollars for medicine and treatment was cured by a few boxes of these tablets. Price, 25 cents. Samples free at W. F. Creighton & Co. and Richard F. Gibson.

BATTLE WITH A MAD DOG.

Horribly bitten by a rabid dog, Albert F. Craddock, of Fairfax district, Henrico county, Va., yesterday limped into Richmond and applied to the Pasteur Institute for treatment. Craddock had a thrilling battle with the dog. Although badly bitten, he grasped the rabid animal by the neck, choking the dog to death, while his wife had gone for assistance.

On Monday night while Craddock and his family were sitting in their home a noise as of dogs fighting attracted attention to the yard. One of the children opened the door, and immediately the rabid animal ran into the room, snapping and biting at everything in sight. The animal leaped at Mrs. Craddock, but her husband interposed his body in the way and attempted to kick the dog from the house. The animal fastened its teeth in the man's leg.

In a moment Craddock had the beast by the neck, while his wife had hurried for assistance. When Mrs. Craddock returned, 10 minutes later, Craddock still had the dog by the neck, but the animal was dead. The weight of the dog, which was a fine St. Bernard, was 70 pounds.

A fund is being raised among the citizens to defray the expenses of Craddock at the Pasteur Institute.
